

Materials submitted to the Degree Committee following the doctoral (or master's) thesis defense

1. The first page or the full text of each published paper shall be provided, with the candidate's name highlighted.
2. For collaboration papers, the candidate must be a primary author and provide supporting documentation, including the first page of an analysis memo, analysis note, or supporting note. These documents should highlight the candidate's name. Additionally a description of the candidate's specific contribution to the paper should also be provided.
3. All the above-mentioned materials shall be signed by the supervisor of the candidate, and reviewed and endorsed by the discipline head.